

SIMPLE LIFE NOW FOR THE DAVISES

Eugenia Kelley, That Was, Admits She's Not Much On Cooking, But Will Try.

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 18.—Mrs. Albert J. Davis, who until 7:30 o'clock last night was Miss Eugenia Kelley, is in the Hotel DuPont with her husband. She is telling him that she doesn't know much about cooking, but that she is sure she can make a perfectly good dinner.

Mr. Davis, who is better known on Broadway as "Al," is just telling his bride, who has been fairly well known lately as Miss Eugenia Kelley, the twenty-year-old, million-dollar heiress, daughter of Mrs. Edward Kelley, New York, that he likes her, but that she is not necessary to his perfect happiness.

Mrs. Davis smiles and says: "Well, there are other things one can eat besides clam omelet."

Now for the Simple Life.

Mr. Davis says something else extremely curious here, and there is some small talk about how Mr. Davis arrives at the unorthodox hour of 5:30 a. m., and how the former Miss Kelley tumbles out of bed at an equally unorthodox hour, and how they both love the simple life and deplore the Broadway whirl.

Mr. Davis is sure the change should be steamed with their clothes on. His bride raises her hands and eyebrows simultaneously, and says that there may be something about a change which is a closed book to her, and then she says: "Al, I hardly realize I am married. Let me see that certificate."

And this takes us right back to the original proposition, which is that Mr. Davis and Miss Kelley were married at this time at the Hotel DuPont, in the State of Maryland, by the Rev. Henry Carr, in his front parlor.

It may be said that several ministers of Elktion were modest about performing the ceremony after they had seen a certificate of the divorce decree which was granted by Supreme Court Justice Hendon in New York Tuesday.

The present Mrs. Davis asked her husband several times during the day if he didn't wish he could remain a bachelor more than twenty-four hours. It must be recorded that he said each time that he had never been a bachelor too long to please him already.

It will be remembered that interest in the affairs of Al Davis and the then Miss Kelley became acute last May, when Miss Kelley's mother had her arranged on a charge of inebriation.

Right now the impression is that Mr. Davis had far too much influence over Miss Kelley and that something was likely to happen to him, Mrs. Kelley, besides mentioning Mr. Davis in her talk to the magistrate, also referred to taxis and cocktails without restraint.

Such now is the situation. That Mr. Davis has a suit for $500 for slander against Mrs. Kelley and both Mr. and Mrs. Davis are wondering what will come of it.

Mrs. Davis says that when she left home her mother said: "What time are you going to get married?"

"I don't know myself," Mrs. Davis says she replied.

"Well, you ought to have a veil, and I'll send you the orange blossoms," was Mrs. Kelley's reply, according to her daughter.

When Miss Kelley left her mother's home she went to the Ritz-Carlton, where she waited word from Davis. Meanwhile a dozen newspaper reporters had stopped Miss Kelley, and when she had refused to talk with them had established a cordon outside the hotel.

Joined Davis in Station.

They were watching all the exits when, at 1:30 p. m., Miss Kelley hurried from the Carlton exit and stepped into a waiting taxi. At the Pennsylvania station Miss Kelley was joined by Mr. Davis. They bought tickets for Philadelphia.

As far as Philadelphia, Mr. Davis and Miss Kelley were secluded in a stateroom. At West Philadelphia they changed trains for this city.

It was quite interesting to discover that on the train from West Philadelphia to this city the party could not have a stateroom. The fact that "Somebody certainly will recognize us," Davis said.

When the train pulled into this city the politician who had made arrangements for the marriage in Elktion was visited. After that Miss Kelley, Mr. Davis and correspondents started in a limousine for Elktion, twenty miles from here and across the Maryland line.

At Newark, Del., about twelve miles from here, Miss Kelley said: "Goodness gracious, I will be glad when I get back to the hotel Du Pont where I can have a bath and change my rooms and a few things like that. I am starved. I have been so nervous I haven't eaten anything."

Mr. Elktion what was a first thought to be a committee of forewarned residents met the party with full directions for finding a room. The party, having inquiries developed the fact that any auto with a Delaware license seen in Elktion is believed to hold an eloping pair.

"Elktion is the Gretna Green of the East," said State Attorney Constable.

Three Declined To Act.

After the license had been got by Mr. Davis there was a hitch in the proceedings. Three ministers declined to marry a divorced person.

Mr. Davis was telling Miss Kelley that he would motor over every square inch of Maryland in quest of a minister who would marry him when the Rev. Mr. Carr was suggested. The minister Carr lives in that section of Elktion known as Little Elm, and is pastor of a small church in that country.

When the Rev. Mr. Carr agreed to perform the ceremony Miss Kelley said: "Thank goodness, I am awful hungry."

Mr. Carr repeated a simple and impressive service in a deep voice. Mr. Davis and Miss Kelley stood with bowed heads. The Rev. Mr. Carr is a young man and earnest. His voice sounded above the drone of the waiting motor, and quite filled the front parlor of the little cottage. The ceremony began at 7:25 and ended at 7:30, when he said: "Now kiss each other."

A New, Harmless Way to Banish Hairy Growths

(Beauty Topics)

By following this suggestion any woman can, in the privacy of her own home, remove every trace of hair or fuzz from her face. With powdered detolene and water mix enough paste to cover the unwanted hairs, apply and in 2 or 3 minutes rub off and wash the skin. This method is unobtrusive, harmless, and quick in results, and care should be employed to get genuine detolene.—Adv.

Arranging Program For Anthony Pageant; Music to Be Feature

LONDON, Nov. 18.—Sufferings of many thousands of blood disease victims in the United States because American physicians lack salvarsan may soon be relieved.

The United Press was informed authoritatively today that the British government already has released fifteen cases of salvarsan from Germany. The government intends to permit to pass to the United States within a few weeks a six months' supply, either from Germany or France, providing the United States will accept the product made in France. At the expiration of six months, officials here said, America will be able to supply herself.

Remedy Situation.

In permitting salvarsan to pass the British blockade, it was explained that the British government is acting for humanitarian reasons and because it desires to extend all possible courtesies to the United States.

Officials here displayed the greatest interest in reports cabled here, telling of the great suffering in the United States since the blockade cut off the salvarsan supply from Germany. They expressed the greatest regret, and said that steps will be taken at once to remedy the situation.

When America first requested that salvarsan be allowed to pass the blockade, and that American physicians be permitted to purchase the medicine, they suggested that American physicians buy the form of salvarsan being manufactured in England and France.

German Patent Rights.

The reply from the United States was that salvarsan could not be obtained in sufficient quantities in these countries, even if the quality were the same as that obtainable in Germany, which was doubted. Moreover, it was stated that the United States feared that by buying in France and England who would violate German patent rights.

At one point in the negotiations it was suggested that American chemists obtain permission to make salvarsan according to the German formula during the period of the war. American physicians, however, interpreted the suggestion that the quality of the American-made salvarsan might be poor because American chemists had not had previous experience in manufacturing the drug.

IF HAIR IS TURNING GRAY, USE SAGE TEA

Here's Grandmother's Recipe to Darken and Beautify Faded Hair.

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray, streaked and looks dry, wispy and scraggy, just an application of two or three bottles of "Sage and Sulphur Compound" will restore its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the tonic; you can get from any drug store a bottle of "Sage and Sulphur Compound," ready to use. This can always be depended upon to bring back the color, thickness and shine of your hair and remove dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair.

Everybody uses "Sage and Sulphur Compound" because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy, lustrous and abundant.—Adv.

Fourth False Alarm Calls Out Companies

In spite of extra vigilance of the police, another false alarm of fire has been turned in from a box in the south-east section of Washington, where, on Tuesday night three were sounded in rapid succession. As the result the police are searching for a colored man who they believe sounded all four of the alarms. The alarm last night came from box 536, at Fourth and N streets southeast.

The brush fires made work for the engine companies yesterday. The first was discovered at 2:30 o'clock on the Military road near the Rock Creek entrance to the Zoo. The second broke out half an hour later near the Harvard street entrance to the Zoo. No damage was occasioned by either.

18 POUNDS OF BLOOD

is the average quantity in a healthy adult, but it is the quality of the blood that determines our strength to resist sickness. With weak blood we find cold hands and chilly feet; in children an aversion to study; and in adults rheumatic tendencies.

In changing seasons get abundant fresh air and take a spoonful of Scott's Emulsion after meals, because Scott's Emulsion is a rich blood-food that will increase both quantity and quality of the blood while it warms the body and helps carry off the impurities.

When multitudes of people are today taking Scott's Emulsion to avert winter sickness, and are giving it to their children, it is careless to neglect its benefits. Look out for substitutes.

GEN. WOOD ATTACKS SOLDIERS' DEFAMERS

Says No Self-Respecting Man Could Have Penned Letter Barred From Mails.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—The slur on soldiers which has been credited to Jack London, but which he denies having written, and which has been barred from the mails when stamped in red ink on the back of envelopes, has provoked a condemnatory letter from Gen. Leonard Wood.

William D. Fink received one of the envelopes in his mail and grew so indignant that he wrote to General Wood enclosing the envelope. General Wood got in touch with the Postoffice Department by way of the War Department regarding the matter. Also he replied to Mr. Fink as follows:

"I quite agree with you in your strong condemnation of the unpatriotic and contemptible utterances purporting to be from Mr. London, which are being circulated through the mails by being printed on the backs of envelopes."

"I am sending the envelope you enclose to me to the Postmaster General, through the proper channels, with request that appropriate action be taken."

"No self-respecting, patriotic American could be guilty of such sentiments as are expressed and no American worthy of the name will aid in circulating it."

"I do not know of any way we can reach a man of this sort. He simply was born so. We cannot make a silk purse out of a pig's ear or a patriot out of a creature of this kind. Let him alone, he is his own worst enemy."

"The Government alone can deal with the question of circulating this sort of stuff through the mails."

"Very truly yours,"

"LEONARD WOOD."

The sentiments to which General Wood, Mr. Fink and the Federal authorities object begin as follows:

"Young man, the lowest aim in your life is to be a good soldier. The good soldier never tries to distinguish right from wrong. He never thinks, never reasons, he only obeys."
